Briefly

Summer increases needs for food

Because children do not receive a discount priced lunch during the summer school vacation, the need for donated food for the poor is greater than ever. See Page 3A for the story.

Perot memorabilia hotter than ever

Campaign buttons and other paraphernalia related to the candidacy of H. Ross Perot became even more popular after the Texas billionaire decided Thursday not to make his run for the presidency. See Page 8A for the story.

Tomato contest

The Journal's second annual "big tomato" contest is under way.

For the next three weeks, the Journal will be looking for the largest homegrown tomato in town. We'll weigh it and record the weight. Each week the master gardener will receive $10 for entering the largest tomato.

To enter, bring your tomato to the Journal office, 1815 Delmar, during regular office hours of 8:30 a.m. through 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Tip of the hat

Turner Brooks of Madison has been promoted to the post of director of the St. Ann and Midtown St. Louis campuses of Vatterott College. The promotion was announced by John C. Vatterott, president of the school. In his new position, Brooks will supervise all operations of the two campuses. Brooks, who has been a member of the Vatterott staff since 1984, was previously the director of the Midtown campus and has served as the director of night classes and director of financial aid.

'Real person' Willard Portell dies at 75

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

In a field dominated by lawyers and lawyer-types, Madison County Circuit Clerk Willard "Butch" Portell was one of the few remaining "real people" in the court system.

"Whether you were a high-powered attorney with political connections or a steelworker from the mill, everyone got a fair hearing from Butch — although I always suspected the steelworker might have gotten a little better service," said Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine.

Harrison

Portell, a former pipefitter from Granite City, died Sunday at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City. The cause of death was undetermined.

First elected circuit clerk in 1960, Portell was re-elected seven successive times. He was 75 years old.

"Butch Portell spent his whole life improving the court system," said Appellate Judge Moses Harrison, who served two terms as chief judge in Madison County during Portell's reign. "He always worked hard, was people oriented and was always a good representative of the court."

Portell, who did not seek re-election this year, planned to retire in December. Former Madison County State's Attorney Dick Allen said this is truly the end of an era in Madison County.

"At one time, he was the youngest circuit clerk in Illinois," Allen said. "He had a long history of public service and was the most senior, and one of the most influential, circuit clerks in the state."

Portell was a past president of the Illinois Circuit Clerk's Association and spent nearly a

Torment of war

Conflict in Yugoslavia concerns local residents

The old country is breaking Stephanie S. Milkovich's heart.

"In the morning I read the paper and I cry," the Croatian native said. "I feel like every day I'm at the funeral home."

The Glen Carbon woman is being tormented by a complicated war pitting Croats, Serbians and Muslims against each other in crumbling Yugoslavia.

"For generations to come, this is going to be the worst war ever," said Milkovich, 63, who immigrated to Granite City from Croatia at 16. "Our generation will be judged why we didn't do all we could to stop this."

She and many of the other 40,000 Americans of Croatian descent in the St. Louis area are doing what they can to alleviate the war's tragedy. The Croatian Relief Project based at St. Joseph Croatian Catholic Church in St. Louis has sent $1 million in humanitarian aid to Croatia and Bosnia-Herzegovina, two former Yugoslav republics that have declared independence.

"We are strictly humanitarian," Milkovich said. "No money is going to anything but food and medicine."

The fighting between the Croatian militia and Serbian militants has centered in Bosnia since Feb. 29. Up to 10,000 have been killed, and refugees are streaming out by the thousands.

Yugoslavia, once a federation of eight republics, now chiefly consists of two, Serbia and Montenegro. The Serb-dominated Yugoslav army has been accused of arming the Serb militants in Bosnia, and the United Nations has placed an embargo against Yugoslavia to try to force an end to the hostilities.

"We are witnessing the latest act of an 800-year-old drama," said Stanley B. Kimball, history professor at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. "It has been quintessentially tragic from day one. There is right and wrong on both sides. It would take a Solomon to sort it out."

During World War II, some Croats were Nazi sympathizers and committed atrocities against the Serbs. "The Serbs are now definitely the aggressor," Kimball said. "They consider it's their turn at bat."

Large numbers of people of Croatian descent live in Madison, Granite City, Mount Olive and Benld, Milkovich said.

Most people of Serbian descent live on the Missouri side of the area, said SIUE graduate student Mark Sarich of Granite City, who is of Serbian descent.

The conflict in the Balkans has not created ethnic strife between Serbs and Croats here, many of whom have "ties to the old country," Sarich said.

"I'm surprised how little (tension) there is," he said. "I think most of us are pretty confused. We're really embarrassed by what is going on."

Milkovich said she did not want to lay blame. "The Croatia I grew up in was a melting pot. We didn't point fingers at each other. No wars make sense.

"Many nights I don't sleep and think about it. It seems to me there is less and less respect for life. That is so sad. No respect. If a nation does not respect life, life will no longer exist.

"I'm doing all that is humanely possible to do from this distance."

The Croatian Relief Project is having a picnic with games and traditional foods at 11 a.m. Sunday at St. Joseph Church in St. Louis.

Professor debunks perceptions about welfare

By Mike Chambers
Staff writer

What comes to mind when you think of welfare recipients? Lazy? Freeloaders?

Those are some common perceptions that a Washington University professor says are completely wrong.

Mark Rank, a professor of social work, has completed a book based on his findings from a two-year research project of a state welfare system, looking at who receives welfare. It is entitled "Living on the edge: The realities of welfare recipiency."

Rank said there are a number of common misconceptions about welfare recipients: that they are habitual free loaders and are on welfare most of their lives; that most on welfare are minorities living in inner cities; even that some welfare recipients have more children as a way of increasing their welfare incomes.

Younge

Two area legislators currently have legislation awaiting the governor's signature that may relate to such misconceptions, officials say.

State Rep. Wyvetter Younge, D-East St. Louis, is waiting for word from Gov. Jim Edgar on whether he will approve a $25 million package that Younge sponsored. It would require that some welfare recipients work for their checks.

"Based on the premise that everybody wants to work," Younge drafted the legislation that would mandate that job opportunities be found for healthy welfare recipients.

Younge said structural unemployment such as in East St. Louis, where in the last 20 years the community has lost approximately 55,000 jobs, leads to structural welfare.

Younge said the answer to curbing structural welfare lies in focusing on bringing work to communities.

"Part of our problem is that, with the many state and federal programs, we've gotten away from the fact that we need to build local economies," she said.

State Sen. Frank Watson, R-Greenville, has a proposal that has passed both houses of the General Assembly. It would curb what he terms "welfare opportunists."

The bill would mandate that people receiving welfare, after moving from states that offer less benefits than Illinois, would receive the amount set by the other state.

"We have seen an influx of people to Illinois because of budget cuts in other states, such as Wisconsin and Missouri," Watson said.

"These people are just taking advantage of our system and the state can't afford to take on that burden," he said.

While both legislators recognize that welfare recipients include hard-working victims of the recession, each has a bill

Man arrested with gun at police station

A 25-year-old Pontoon Beach man was arrested early Saturday after allegedly bringing a concealed handgun into the Granite City police station.

Thomas R. Mitcherson of Nicholas Lane was arrested at the Granite City police station, 2330 Madison Ave., at 2:15 a.m. and charged with unlawful use of weapons, aggravated assault, battery, domestic battery and resisting arrest.

Marilyn Mitcherson, 35, told police Thomas Mitcherson, her husband, threatened her with a .25 caliber semi-automatic pistol in the 2900 block of National Avenue, following an argument at a tavern in Madison.

She said Thomas Mitcherson held her in choke hold and threatened her with the gun. She then fled to the police station.

Marilyn Mitcherson said Thomas Mitcherson rammed her vehicle with his car while en route to the station, according to a police report.

When informed that Mitcherson had a gun, the desk sergeant at the station was able to confiscate the weapon without incident, according to the report.

While being held in custody, Mitcherson allegedly fought with police officers and had to be physically restrained.

Young and old fiddle around at fair

HIGHLAND — Listeners came out winners at Madison County Fair's annual fiddle contest Sunday when 16 of the region's best fiddled for more than four hours.

"This is the big attraction to the fair," said contest organizer George Portz of Shiloh. "It's been a tradition for over 10 years now. It kicks off the fair. Old time fiddlin' is really coming back. It's handed down from generation to generation. It's America's art form; it's true American music."

Generations were represented Sunday, with fiddlers as young as 9 mixing with those as old as 78.

Portz was pleased to note five of the contestants were 15 or younger. "The future of fiddling is right here," he said as the youths got their awards.

Emcee Paul Brake of Ballwin, Mo., said, "A lot of kids are getting in these contests, so it will never die out."

The Herzing family of Mount Vernon offered strong evidence supporting Brake's contention.

Junior grand prize winner Jennifer Herzing, 12, fiddled while her sister, Jessica, 9, accompanied on a mandolin. Their mother, Nancy, played upright bass, and father Jim played guitar. The family often competes at contests and plays gospel music.

"Jennifer takes violin lessons but picks up bluegrass by ear," said Nancy Herzing. Jennifer said she and most of her friends enjoyed bluegrass and that she had won "lots" of other trophies.

Portz also praised the seniors. "The music is passed on from generation to generation, so it starts with the seniors. These contests give old-timers a place to play, and youngsters can trade licks with them and learn new ones."

Portz said entrants are judged on three selections: a hoedown, a waltz and one of their choice.

"They can play polka, anything, even rock, although someone would probably shoot them," he joked. "None of our instruments are electrified, so it's not like country music."

Judges rate contestants on timing, tone and authenticity of tunes as well as creativity.

Family Values defined: What I do has them

People write us, call us, fax us, stop us on the street. "What are these Family Values we hear so much about?" they ask.

We smile kindly, Hugh Beaumont as Ward Cleaver. We are the director of the FVI — Family Values, Inc. We know folks are confused. Everybody in every party stands for "Family Values," regardless of what their personal values or family situation might be.

George Bush makes a speech on Family Values to counter Bill Clinton's speech on Family Values which was made to counter Dan Quayle's speech on Family Values, which inspired the selection of Albert (Mr. Environment) Gore, who has only twice the number of children the eco-nuts recommend. Even Ross Perot talked about Family Vales, though apparently the value of finishing what you started wasn't stressed in his family.

Ross Jr.: "Dad, can I have dessert?"

Ross: "You finished with your dinner?"

Ross Jr.: "Nope."

Ross: "Sure, have dessert."

Trouble has come, however, in defining just what "Family Values" are. Abortion advocates say they're for FV because love is a family value and every child should be loved. Abortion opponents say aborting a child is a strange way to show love.

The governor of Missouri is said to have been reluctant to sign a school breakfast bill because he thought breakfast at home was a family value that shouldn't be impeded. He signed it when it was pointed out to him that Ward Cleaver is dead.

Confusion reigns. That's where we come in. We're the FVI, Family Values, Inc., your single source for information on family values.

Thank you for your service, FVI. Get back to breakfast at home. Is it really a family value?

It depends. In the FVI's home, dad cooked breakfast. He fried eggs in bacon grease, cooked them into hardened rubber and served them with bacon and buttered toast. Are hardened arteries a family value? The answer is no.

On the other hand, some moms make granola with yogurt on it, fresh fruit and home-made waffles. If this happens, mom's probably having an affair, which is not a family value.

Wait a minute. What if this granola-and-yogurt mom is stuck in an abusive relationship with a jerk who slips around on her like in a Conway Twitty song? Just because she chooses to fulfill the nutritional needs of her children, should we deny her the fulfillment of her womanhood in a loving, respectful non-monogamous non-traditional relationship?

Depends on the Conway Twitty song. If we're talking the old Conway-and-Loretta duets, certainly those represent family values. However, the new Conway, like the old George Jones, represents infidelity that we at the FVI cannot condone.

What about golf, FVI? Is golf a Family Value?

At the FVI, we list golf as a Family Value, mostly because until Murphy Brown came along and made Family Values necessary, Dan Quayle was most famous for loving golf. Also, remember those people who were rioting in Los Angeles and mocking Family Values? If they belonged to a good country club, you think they would have been rioting? At the FVI, we think not.

But FVI, golf takes a lot of money and a lot of time. Shouldn't people be spending their time and money on family activities, such as trips to Six Flags?

Hah! Obviously you've never climbed into a hot minivan with six tired, sunburned, sugar-freak children after a day at Six Flags. Makes you want to pull off I-44 at Times Beach and drop them in a pool of dioxin. Besides, Six Flags is owned by Time-Warner Entertainment, a division of the same company that put out that cop-killing song. You think killing cops is a Family Value?

You think censorship is a Family Value?

Absolutely. You don't let your kids into dirty bookstores, do you? You don't let them go to R- and X-rated movies, do you? At the FVI's house, censorship is a way of life.

So whatever you do at your house, that's a Family Value? And whatever anybody else does that you don't like, that's not a Family Value?

Near as we can tell at the FVI, that's the American way.

Judicial panel hears Paula Sims' appeal

MOUNT VERNON — A pathologist's "surprise testimony" about a head injury could be the key issue in Paula Sims' appeal of a first-degree murder conviction, a prosecutor said.

A panel of three judges heard oral arguments Friday from Sims' attorney, Donald Groshong, and Gerry Arnold, an attorney with the appellate prosecutor's office.

The 5th District Appellate Court will decide if Sims got a fair trial in 1990 when she was convicted of the 1989 murder of her 6-week-old daughter, Heather.

The court is not expected to rule for several months.

Sims, 32, was sentenced to life in prison after conviction by a jury in Peoria in January 1990.

Stephen Norris, deputy director of the appellate prosecutor's office, said after the arguments that testimony by St. Charles County, Mo., Medical Examiner Mary Case during the trial could be a "problem issue" for the state.

Defense attorneys expected Case to testify about the cause of Heather's death, but they are challenging her testimony as an expert in neurology.

Sims had told police she was knocked unconscious by a masked gunman who abducted Heather from the family's Alton home. The child's body was found days later near West Alton in St. Charles County.

Case testified it would be impossible for Sims to remember being hit on the head, as she told police. Groshong contends the Case testimony was allowed improperly since he had no notice she would testify as an expert in neurology.

"This was a trial by ambush," Groshong told the appellate panel. He said then-Assistant State's Attorney Don Weber, who prosecuted Sims, also got two other doctors to change testimony to bolster the prosecution case.

He said Weber "gloats" in a book he co-wrote about the case, Precious Victims, about surprising the defense and tailoring testimony to the state's benefit.

But Arnold told the judges that prosecutors substantially complied with requirements to disclose expected testimony to the defense.

He said the defense was aware of Case's expertise in neurology and had questioned her at length in a pretrial deposition.

Norris said the Case testimony was important because the state relied heavily on circumstantial evidence and the contention that Sims' account of the crime was unbelievable.

Arnold argued Friday that, because Sims testified in her own behalf, "she must be judged by the improbabilities of her testimony." And, he said, other evidence raised serious doubts about Sims' accounts of Heather's abduction and the disappearance in 1986 of her first daughter, 13-day-old Loralei.

Arnold said evidence about the disappearance and slaying of Loralei was properly admitted because Sims gave near-similar accounts of the two infants' disappearances.

Later, he said, she described Loralei's abduction to a hospital roommate in a way that more closely matched the supposed abduction of Heather weeks later.

Sims' own statements, circumstantial evidence and scientific evidence were enough to prove her guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, Arnold said.

But Groshong told the judges: "There is no evidence in this record as to who killed Heather Sims. The prosecution had zillions of theories, but they didn't have any evidence."

He argued it was improper to instruct the jury that Sims could be held accountable for the actions of another person, when there was no evidence another person committed a crime.

He said the accountability theory allowed the prosecutor to "get around the problem of having to prove who did what."

He said the trial was tainted by "a horrendous amount of adverse publicity," much of it generated by police and prosecutors, and that the jury should have been sequestered.

"The defendant was tried, convicted and sentenced long before we got to the courthouse in Peoria," Groshong said.

Weber, who attended the arguments Friday, said they were well-presented.

"I think they will be fairly considered, and I think the court will uphold the conviction."

The arguments were heard by 5th District Appellate Court Judges William Lewis and Henry Lewis and John Shonkwiler, a circuit judge from the 6th Judicial Circuit assigned by the Illinois Supreme Court.

Need for food increases in summer

Second of two parts.

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Need knows no boundaries, and has no timetable.

While the winter holiday season may be a popular time for giving, those who are hungry have year-round need.

In fact, according to local food pantry operators, need actually increases in the summer.

Because children eat at least one meal a day at school during school months, families on tight budgets or receiving public aid feel an extra pinch during the summer, when children are at home and must be fed there, according to Delores Gaines of Protestant Welfare in Granite City.

"People run out of food stamps more quickly in the summer," Gaines said.

At such times, it is good to have a single agency coordinate food donations to pantries, preventing shortages and ensuring enough food is available to those in need, Gaines said.

That coordinating agency is Operation Food Search.

In its 10 years of existanee, Operation Food Search has established more than 580 regular donors of food to nearly 200 local food pantries, soup kitchens and emergency shelters such as Protestant Welfare and the Salvation Army. Among the donors are restaurants, hospitals and grocery stores.

"All we have to do is go pick it up," Gaines said.

Last month, Protestant Welfare helped more than 115 people by providing food when they had nowhere else to turn.

And the sluggish economy has made demand greater than ever, Gaines said. Through June, Protestant Welfare had served 271 more people than last year in the same six-month period.

"A lot of people are laid off and their unemployment benefits have not been extended," Gaines said.

Lt. Tim Miller of the Granite City Salvation Army said, while need is a year-round condition, more people seem to appear in summer months.

The Salvation Army served 143 cases, representing 396 individuals, last month, Miller said.

Dolores Carson checks over a food order at Protestant Welfare's food pantry.

Already this year, Operation Food Search's Hunger Hotline — 569-0053 — has registered a 17 percent increase in the number of calls, said Bill Nordmann, executive director.

"Our ultimate goal is not to be in business," Nordmann said, knowing full well that goal will not soon be realized.

But the food must come from somewhere. For every hungry family fed, there must also be a donor.

Starting last week, and continuing until Aug. 15, Operation Food Search is collecting needed supplies of all kinds of food — perishables, prepared meals and canned goods. The food drive is being co-sponsored by the Journals and KMOV-TV Channel 4.

Clearly marked food drop-off points have been established at all area Dierberg Markets.

GOP names Bush coordinator

A Godfrey man is taking over as the head of the local effort to re-elect President George Bush.

The Madison County Republican Committee has named Doug Mueller as the Madison County coordinator for the campaign to re-elect President Bush.

Mueller is a newcomer to the political scene. He was appointed GOP precinct committeeman for Godfrey Precinct 3 in April of this year.

"He decided to get involved because he listened to Clinton's campaign and then he paid attention to Bush's efforts for economic and social reform and was impressed," said Cecil Miller, manager of the Madison County Republican headquarters. "He didn't want to just sit by."

Mueller is a native of Godfrey, where he lives with his wife and children.

He is a graduate of the University of Missouri and works as a computer programmer for McDonnell Douglas.

Friends plan help for Mary Hanke

Friends, family and the community are rallying to help Mary and Ron Hanke.

Mary, who was diagnosed with ovarian cancer in December of 1988, was a full-time employee at St. Elizabeth Medical Center from 1974 until she recently had to quit for health reasons.

Mary, of the 3200 block of Fehling Road, is preparing to receive "Taxol" treatment in Chicago. Her treatments require her to travel to Chicago every three weeks, for a minimum of three days each trip.

While insurance may cover the cost of treatments, friends and family want to help with travel and living expenses and current medical bills.

Her husband, Ron Hanke, lost his left leg to diabetes six years ago and is also unable to work.

Friends and family are sponsoring a barbecue July 24, starting at 10:30 a.m. The benefit is being co-sponsored by Aid Association for Lutherans, Branch #252.

The barbecue will be held at the corner of Niedringhaus Avenue and Iowa Street, behind the lab at SEMC. A bake sale at the hospital last week raised $831 for the Hankes.

The barbecue menu includes pork steak sandwiches for $2.50, bratwurst plates for $3, and pork steak plates for $3.50. Plates include potato salad, baked beans and bread. Tickets for the carry-out only barbecue are available by calling 876-7409, and will also be available at the event. Proceeds from the fund-raising events will assist Mary and Ron with expenses.Thos wishing to make donations may call the above number.

Wadlow stamp drive faltering

Efforts to get Alton's Gentle Giant, Robert Wadlow, on a thumb-sized commemorative postage stamp are falling short.

A letter-writing campaign launched in January has not convinced the U.S. Postal Service's Citizens Stamp Advisory Committee to put the world's tallest man, who towered nearly 9 feet, on a stamp.

"The momentum of the community is not behind us," said Charlene Gill, president emeritus of the Alton Museum of History and Art Inc., which is heading the campaign. "The interest was pretty great at first, especially among schoolchildren who wrote letters. People who weren't from Alton but had visited (the museum) showed the most support."

Only 25 to 30 commemorative stamps are issued each year and last year about 30,000 letters were received by the Postal Service, recommending 1,500 different ideas for commemorative stamps.

Gill said the letter-writing campaign has been under way for about three years, but she did not know how many letters the advisory committee had received. "We have had a steady flow coming in (to the committee)," she said.

Wadlow, who died in 1940, was considered by the committee in 1991 but not chosen.

"The St. Louis Post Office has not been very supportive. They said he isn't very well-known. But, we have had support from others," Gill said, noting letters have been sent from U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, and U.S. Reps. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, and Richard Durbin, D-Springfield.

It takes up to three years for consideration of the stamp's subject, design and production.

"We have very little time left to make our goal, which is Feb. 22, 1993, Wadlow's 75th birthday," Gill said. "We know it takes a long time and commemorative stamps are in great demand. Look at the Elvis stamp.

"There is just a wonderful feeling for the Gentle Giant here. The kids love his statue. We really feel he deserves a stamp."

Anyone wanting to request that Wadlow be considered for a commemorative stamp should write to: Citizens Stamp Advisory Committee, U.S. Postal Service, 475 L'Enfant Plaza, S.W., Washington, D.C., 20260.

Courtyard project gets donation

A Union Electric donation through the Belleville Area College Foundation has partially funded the development of the Granite City Campus courtyard.

Union Electric's gift of $2,000 helped to landscape the campus' new courtyard with several types of trees and plants. The area also features tables and benches, a water fountain and brick pathways that will be lighted at night.

"We're pleased to be a partner in this project," said James D. Bess, UE district manager. "Union Electric takes an active role as a good corporate citizen in the communities it serves."

Union Electric made the donation through its GreenLeaf Program, which awards grants to non-profit groups within its service area to promote energy conservation and cleaner air by sowing trees and large foliage plants on public properties. In 1991, the GreenLeaf Program awarded 17 grants totaling $21,000.

"I am pleased that the foundation could assist in bringing Union Electric and Belleville Area College together for the creation of this project," said Melvin C. Wilmsmeyer of Granite City, a member of the Foundation Board of Directors.

The courtyard was officially opened on June 24 during a public dedication ceremony, attended by BAC and Union Electric officials.

Beautification of the courtyard area has been a cooperative effort between Union Electric and college personnel, according to B.J. Davis, Granite City Campus provost.

"Many hands have worked together to make the sitting garden at our Granite City Campus a reality," said Davis. "Our intention was to transform our campus courtyard from an area that had not been utilized to an area of quiet reflection for students, staff, and the public."

BAC horticulture students in the floral design class developed the plans for the layout of the garden, including selection of the trees and plants that would flourish in a crowded area. They also assisted UE personnel with many of the plantings.

Melvin C. Wilmsmeyer, left, of Granite City, a member of the Belleville Area College Foundation Board of Directors, presented John Biellier, superintendent of forestry for Union Electric, with a Brickmark Award during the dedication ceremony of the courtyard at the college's Granite City Campus. The award from the Foundation recognized the contributions made by Union Electric to assist BAC in developing the courtyard.

School state aid hikes forecast

SPRINGFIELD — Most area school districts will get slight increases in general state aid for the coming school year.

The State Board of Education released projected state aid payments for school districts based on the state budget approved by lawmakers last week and expected to be signed by Gov. Jim Edgar.

Grant payments from the state have been late and the last month's general state aid payment was delayed a month in the fiscal year that ended June 30.

The Legislature approved the same amount requested for elementary and high schools as Edgar recommended in his budget plan, a statewide increase of about $30 million for a total of about $2.1 billion in general state aid.

State parks guide now available

A colorful new guide to Illinois state parks now is available to summer recreation seekers, Conservation Director Brent Manning said.

"Illinois resident and out-of-state visitors alike should find the Illinois State Parks Magazine a handy reference to activities and facilities offered at state recreation areas," Manning said.

Consisting of 88 pages in a 5½-inch by 8½-inch format, the guide book features color photography, artwork and maps. Included is information on plants, animals, fishing, hunting, camping and special events. The publication also includes articles on Abraham Lincoln and Illinois waterways, plus a brief overview of the state's geology and history.

Jim Fulgenzi, head of Conservation's Office of Resource Marketing and Education, said the guide is an invaluable reference for visitors to state park lodges.

"In one convenient publication, people will find extensive information about each resort, including amenities, location and a phone number for making reservations," Fulgenzi said. "In addition, brief narratives on more than 100 other Department of Conservation sites are featured, along with maps showing their locations by region and charts describing available facilities and activities, from concession stands to swimming pools."

Underwritten completely by advertising sales, Illinois State Parks magazine is being distributed free of charge at visitor centers statewide. Copies also are available by calling the Conservation Department at 217-782-7454 or the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs' Bureau of Tourism at 1-800-925-8181, extension 51.

In addition, copies can be obtained by writing the Department of Conservation, Office of Resource Marketing and Education, 524 S. Second St., Springfield, Ill., 62701-1787.

Vadalabene returns $46,000 to state

State Senator Sam Vadalabene will return nearly $46,000 from his district office allowance to the Illinois treasury.

Vadalabene, (D-Edwardsville) who operates his district office out of his Edwardsville home, does not employ staff in Edwardsville and answers his own phone. Vadalabene employs a secretary in his office in the State Capitol, who handles constituent calls, answers letters and coordinates the Senator's schedule.

"These are tough times for the state. While $46,000 barely puts a ding in the past due bills that the State owes, it's still a good sum of money that the state needs," Vadalabene said.

"Everyone needs to be doing their part to cut government waste and to save taxpayers' dollars. This is my small part," Vadalabene said.

State senators are provided a $57,000 annual district office allowance to cover rent, utilities, staff, phones and other costs.

SIUE external funding increases

External funding for projects and programs at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville continues to increase, Rosemarie Archangel, dean of the Graduate School, said Monday.

Exclusive of student financial assistance, funding for fiscal year 1992 rose from $9,780,768 to $12,954,059, a 32-percent increase over the previous year. In addition, SIUE faculty and staff have 123 grant proposals, totaling $9,875,785, pending agency action.

The university received $6,518,615 in student support during FY 1992, making an overall total of $19,472,674 received in external funding. In FY 1992, SIUE received $5,015,896 in student support.

The dean said increases in funding are concentrated in the areas of public service and research. Funding for research grants rose from $1,634,061 to $2,166,186, an increase of 32 percent, while support for public service grants increased from $6,609,705 to $8,514,218, an increase of 29 percent.

During the year, faculty and staff submitted 326 grant proposals for external funding, resulting in a 72 percent success rate (325 proposals received funding).

"More important than the level of external funding is how sponsored programs helped the university achieve its objectives, particularly those associated with strengthening the curriculum," Archangel said.

Funding received by the Schools of Education and Sciences was used to improve elementary and secondary education.

National Science Foundation, Danforth Foundation, and Illinois Board of Higher Education grants supported projects aimed at improving the teaching of science, as well as educational programs involving the physically disabled and the economically and educationally disadvantaged. Some programs addressed the issue of minority access to higher education, while others supported projects/programs for the improvement of undergraduate education.

Archangel said funding from the National Science Foundation will help the Schools of Engineering and Sciences improve their laboratories, while a grant from the U.S. Department of Education will support a cooperative education program for liberal arts students.

Sixty-four proposals were funded in the area of basic research, while the number of dollars received by the university represents a 32-percent increase over last fiscal year, the number of awards was down.

Archangel said major research grants were funded by the National Institute of Dental Research, National Science Foundation, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, U.S. Bureau of Mines, American Heart Association, McDonnell-Douglas Corp. and the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Perot paraphernalia becomes hot(ter)

H. Ross Perot can take his name out of the political ring, but he can't stop collectors from jumping through hoops to buy his campaign paraphernalia.

The lines formed shortly after Perot packed it in Thursday morning.

"There were people here right after they found out Perot had withdrawn from the race," said Sally Beelman of Wood River, a Perot backer who has been selling Perot T-shirts, buttons and bumper stickers. "I've sold about 100 T-shirts, and I've only got one left, but there's still a few bumper stickers and pin-back buttons."

In addition to selling the Perot goods, Beelman had operated a petition stand in her driveway. "I've never made a dime on this," said Beelman, an ardent Perot supporter who will keep three buttons for herself. "I bought the items from vendors and I sold them at cost."

Buttons are 50 cents each and bumper stickers are $1, Beelman said. The remaining T-shirt is $6.

Whether the scramble for Perot memorabilia will pay off by reaching collectible status is debatable, said Bill Sloan, owner of Sloan's Antiques in Alton.

"I don't know if Ross Perot was a big enough player to qualify," Sloan said. "Generally, political collectibles will be based on the amount of impact the candidate had, and I don't know if he's made enough impact to be remembered in 10 years."

Buttons touting some of the better-known presidential candidates, including Hubert H. Humphrey and Barry Goldwater, still sell for less than $5, according to price guide listings.

But Ken Harper, owner of Ken's Coins & Antiques in East Alton, said buying Perot memorabilia could be a good investment. "Just about anything is popular today, and I would think that Perot items will eventually become collectors' items," he said.

"I've sold some of the older but tons over the years, like Wilkie and Dewey, and I have several books on political buttons," Harper said. "If we'd saved some of those things from 40 or 50 years ago, they'd be worth money. But people don't know what to save."

"If I were buying Perot items, I'd go for the buttons," Sloan said. "For one thing, buttons are a lot easier to display than T-shirts and bumper stickers."

Sheldon Rudman, the owner of Collections, a store in Richardson, Texas, near the heart of Perot country, said inflated prices are already being bandied about for Perot relics.

"There will be a high price, but nobody will actually pay that price," he predicted. "Lots of sellers but no buyers."

That's the same conclusion reached by Charles Cotrell, academic vice president and political science professor at St. Mary's University in San Antonio. His school owns more than 1,000 buttons and other political knickknacks dating from the 1896 William McKinley-William Jennings Bryan presidential contest.

He suggested that Perot campaign residue would be unusually interesting to future students of politics. But these souvenirs probably won't attain the monetary value of those from earlier races, he said.

"I don't expect the stock to go up too much on these, given the fact that they can be reproduced so easily," he said.

Disabilities services directory available

SPRINGFIELD — Assistance to people with disabilities is just a phone call away.

A directory of state services available for the disabled is free and can be obtained by calling 1-800-233-DIAL. The Directory of State Services for People with Disabilities published by the Illinois Department of Rehabilitation Services informs people of the wide range of state services available.

"The directory is a valuable source of information for everyone from private individuals to doctors and social workers to community librarians. We encourage people to call for a copy," said department Director Audrey L. McCrimon.

Services provided by 23 different state departments are listed with a description of the agencies, addresses and phone numbers.

East Alton man honored for saving fiancee's life

ST. LOUIS, JULY 9, 1992 — "I don't think of myself as a hero. But everyone should take the Red Cross lifesaving course whenever or however they can." That is how Dave Essary summed up his experience on the lake at Beaver Dam State Park in early May.

LIFE SAVING AWARD

Essary and his fiance Maggie Garey were enjoying a canoe ride when suddenly, the boat overturned, and Maggie, who does not swim, became tangled in the lake's thick weeds and vines. In a tremendous effort, Essary pulled Garey to shore while performing rescue breathing to keep her alive.

For his heroic deed, Essary today received the American Red Cross, St. Louis Bi-State Chapter, Lifesaver of the Month award from Channel 4 news anchor Larry Conners.

After the canoe overturned, Essary could barely keep Garey afloat. "I'd say we were 100 to 125 feet from shore," he said. "It was windy and very difficult to move through the water. I thought, 'I've got to make it — this is the woman I love.'"

While maneuvering toward shore, Garey stopped breathing. Essary continued pulling her through the water, pausing to give her mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Finally, a hiker appeared on shore who answered Essary's calls and helped drag Garey out of the water. Paramedics and a park ranger arrived quickly. After an overnight hospital stay, Garey was released with no ill effects.

"I know that without Dave keeping calm in a very frightening situation, my sister would not be here today," Michele Manganelli later wrote.

"If you know someone who saved or sustained a life by using skills learned in a Red Cross health and safety course, Red Cross would like to hear from you. To request a nomination form, call Red Cross at (314) 658-2040, or pick one up at your neighborhood Schnucks courtesy desk.

Anderson to begin two construction projects

Anderson Hospital will begin construction on two separate expansions at its facility this fall, according to hospital President R. Coert Shepard.

The $12 million project includes the addition of a 64,000-square-foot physician office building and a 25,000-square-foot obstetrics unit. Additionally, the existing facility will undergo a variety of remodeling projects to group outpatient services into one centralized area near the main lobby.

"Our comprehensive expansion program will allow the hospital to better serve the community by making health-care services more accessible to our patients," said Shepard. "A primary goal of the project is to create the most efficient outpatient care area possible, to help us meet the demands of an every-increasing outpatient care load."

Shepard projects that the outpatient services area will initially care for 40,000 to 50,000 patients per year. In addition to a design that is convenient for patients, the new areas will be created with efficiency in mind to help the hospital streamline operations and keep health-care costs down, he added.

Bill Eck, the hospital's director of plant operations, said the building projects are expected to be completed in approximately 18 months, with the renovations of existing space to be finished in two years.

The new obstetrics unit will include seven state-of-the-art labor, delivery, recovery and post-partum (LDRP) rooms. The LDRP rooms, which are part of the latest trend in maternity care, allow the mother to remain in one room for her entire hospital stay.

Each private room will feature many amenities to provide a cozy, home-like feeling for the expectant parents, Eck said. Two additional rooms will serve as post partum rooms for mothers who undergo Caesarean sections.

"The OB unit's location, adjacent to the hospital's surgery department, will be ideal for women who deliver Caesarean," said Eck. "When an emergency C-section is required, the patient will be wheeled down a short corridor directly into an operating room."

Other features of the area include a waiting area exclusively for families of maternity patients, an expanded and advanced newborn nursery, and private areas for doctors.

The unit will have its own public entrance, making it accessible to maternity patients 24 hours a day. "Those patients arriving during late hours will no longer be required to use the emergency department entrance," Eck said. "And the most advanced security system will be part of the new unit."

The other major expansion, a physician office building, will house 12 to 15 offices for use by physicians. Laboratory and X-ray areas will be available in the building for the doctors' use. It will also include a doctors' lounge, a medical staff library and an outpatient pharmacy.

Although the structure will primarily serve physicians, some hospital functions will be relocated to the office building, including the hospital's administration, medical records, nursing administration, personnel and public relations offices. The building will also house a food vending area and more than 3,000 square feet of classroom space.

Due to space limitations, remodeling of the existing facility cannot take place until the new construction projects are completed. These renovations, which are expected to be completed in the last six months of the two-year project, include relocating many of the hospital's outpatient services to the vicinity of the main lobby. Services to be relocated to that area include respiratory therapy, physical therapy, EEG, cardiology, outpatient treatment services, and outpatient lab services.

A new, enlarged waiting area will be constructed for friends and family members of thoses undergoing inpatient and outpatient surgeries.

The expansion and renovations will also allow other departments to expand or relocate.

Fiscal 1992 revenues short of estimates

Total Illinois General Fund revenues for fiscal 1992 were $14.217 billion, $956 million higher than in fiscal 1991, Comptroller Dawn Clark Netsch reported.

However, the revenues collected were $168 million lower than the governor's Budget Bureau estimates last April and $189 million less than projected by the General Assembly's Economic and Fiscal Commission.

The revenue shortfall in state sources is significant, Netsch said, because "out-year" revenue projections will now be made from a lower base. Therefore, higher revenue growth assumptions are required to achieve preliminary revenue projections for fiscal 1993.

Overall, revenue from state sources increased $775 million or 6.9 percent from fiscal 1991. Individual income tax revenues were up 4.7 percent, and corporate income tax revenues were up 6.5 percent.

decade on that organization's Legislative Committee. As an active member of the Illinois Supreme Court Committee for Criminal Justice, Portell was rated one of the most outstanding circuit clerks in the state.

A lover of sports in general and baseball in particular, Portell was a good friend of former baseball Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog and held the title of "lifetime scout" with several professional baseball organizations. Out-of-town witnesses forced to spend a weekend in the county often received complimentary baseball tickets from Portell.

Haine said he first met Portell in 1960 when Haine was a 15 year-old Democratic volunteer and Portell was "our candidate for circuit clerk." Haine said Portell was one of the last of the "old-style Democrats" and will be missed.

"He was from another era, but it was a good era," Haine said. "I think we need to remember the values of that era, that you never forget where you came from and that you serve people rather than organizations.

"Butch ran his campaigns in the traditional fashion. He talked to people, shook their hands and listened to their concerns."

At the same time, Haine said, Portell saw the transition of the Circuit Clerk's office from the days of handwritten records through the era of typewriters and into the era of computers. Portell was never afraid of innovation, Haine said, and Portell's office was always one of the first in the state to try new programs and services, especially those dealing with child support.

As a county board member, Haine unsuccessfully tried to get Portell a raise in pay, using the extra money Portell's office brought to the county by prosecuting fathers delinquent in supporting children whose mothers were collecting public aid.

"I think we only got five votes," Haine said. "Afterward, I apologized to Butch and he said it could have been worse, that we could have gotten no votes.

"Then he said something I'll never forget. He said, 'You did your best and when you do your best you have nothing to apologize for.' That's the kind of old fashioned Democratic ethic he represented."

Haine said Portell came into office the year of a great Democratic victory — John F. Kennedy's — and was looking forward to going out in another great Democratic year.

"I think he was looking forward to electing Bill Clinton (as president) in November," Haine said. "He was excited about this year."

•Welfare

regarded by some as being aimed at the perception that welfare recipients are not industrious self-starters.

But, according to Rank's book, the fact is that most cases are just the opposite, Rank says.

In his book, to be published later this year, he maintains:

Commonly, welfare recipients typically are on those programs for less than a year.

Most welfare recipients are whites living in rural areas. Twenty percent of them are elderly.

People on welfare want very much to work.

The birthrate for welfare recipients is no higher than that of the general population.

He called welfare recipients an "isolated community" and said that many times, politicians look at the welfare problem from purely a fiscal standpoint.

"The focus on welfare is on the recipients and not on the problems that lead to welfare. A lot of it is budget-motivated.

"The money is not there, so they (welfare recipients) are being used as scapegoats," Rank said.

"From the political point of view, we focus on the losers of the game and not the game itself," he said.

Rank drew these conclusions after two years of research on welfare in Wisconsin, where he worked on his doctoral dissertation at the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Rank's research included examining case records of welfare recipients, in-depth interviews of 50 families on welfare, and field work in various offices of Medicaid, food stamp programs and general assistance.

Of his research, he said:

"A lot of the supposed negative connotations that we commonly think of when we think of the welfare state (laziness, freeloading), I didn't find.

"I'm not saying welfare recipients are saints. It's just that I found there were more similarities between them and the general public than there were differences."

Rank said that, because his study focused on a state and not simply inner cities, it was more of an accurate representation of the nation.

Flinn calls session most hard fought

State Rep. Monroe Flinn, D-Cahokia, doesn't remember a more hard-fought and divisive session of the General Assembly.

"This session (ending in early July) was very divisive, I think because we needed to make such severe cuts," Flinn said.

The budget, Flinn said, dominated the session. The state fell far short of its expected revenue because of the national recession. The recession also strained state social services.

"Without the tax revenues we expected, we were faced with two choices — raise taxes or cut spending," Flinn said.

"The taxpayers came out on top, but the cuts will be very painful for many people who depend on the state."

Flinn said the Metro East area will benefit from the Legislature's approval of a major economic development project — the expansion of Scott Air Force Base to include civilian flights.

"Everyone in this area knows how hard I have worked to see this project through," Flinn said. "Now that it is so close to becoming a reality, I feel very grateful — only a few years ago it looked like it would be impossible."

Flinn said that, besides the construction jobs linked with the expansion, there will be a lot of other economic development stemming from the new joint-use airport.

Flinn called a proposed new aircraft plant by McDonnell Douglas "the big prize." The plant, if built, would create between 5,000 and 8,000 highly-paid jobs. St. Clair County is among the potential sites.

"I think we are going to see a lot of positive development as a result of this airport," Flinn said. "In addition to the McDonnell Douglas plant, we stand a good chance of attracting many other businesses."

Flinn said there was no support in the General Assembly for the governor's tax increase proposals. The governor proposed seven major tax and fee increases, Flinn said.

"Many of these increases wouldn't have raised much revenue," Flinn said. "For example, we have found that raising the cigarette tax forces some people to quit, lowering the amount of tax dollars collected."

Flinn said that charging an admissions fee at state parks and fishing license fees to senior citizens would set a bad precedent. These proposals also failed.

"These 'minor' tax increases would have cost some people in our area hundreds of dollars," Flinn said. "People shouldn't have to be wealthy to take advantage of state parks."

Social Worker of Year named

Ralpha Hausmann ... honored

Ralpha J. Hausmann, master of social work, director of Social Work Services at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City, has received the Social Worker of the Year award from the Metro East Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers.

Hausmann, a resident of Alton, has been a social worker since 1962 and worked at Alton State Hospital as a social work supervisor until 1968.

In 1969, she was a psychiatric social worker at Mental Health Services of Madison County. She came to SEMC in 1969 and founded the Social Work Department, which has grown from a one-person department to a staff of 11 full-time workers.

Bob Turck, MSW, a member of Hausmann's staff, said, "Ralpha has never lost sight of the mission of social work. To those of us who see her every day, she is a teacher, role model, counselor and friend.

"When war broke out in the Persian Gulf, the mother of a service woman called Ralpha at her home one evening. The woman was anxious, sad and afraid," Turck said.

"A few days later, as a result, Ralpha organized a support group at SEMC for people with relatives in the Gulf war. When she sees the need, she tries to help. These are just some of the reasons we nominated her for Social Worker of the Year."

Hausmann was one of eight in Illinois who received this award.

"I am very happy about receiving this award," Hausmann said. "I want to thank the social workers and members of my department for nominating me. I recently heard a speaker say that no person achieves success without other people. The social workers at SEMC are exceptional and the excellence with which they do their jobs makes me look good every day."

Fun Times.

Darin Hendrickson (left) and Brian Harshany combined to allow only one run and six hits in Sunday's doubleheader sweep in Valmeyer.

Hendrickson, Harshany foil Lakers; Eagles close in on 2nd

The Mon-Clair League normally features lots of offense. But good pitching was the order of the day for the Eagles on Sunday.

Darin Hendrickson and Brian Harshany are Granite City's 1-2 punch on the mound, and they delivered a knockout blow to the Valmeyer Lakers. The home team managed only a single run and six hits as the Eagles all but wrapped up second place in the Monroe Division with 8-0 and 6-1 wins.

Hendrickson (5-3 in Mon-Clair play) kicked things off with a two-hit shutout in the opener. He struck out eight and walked only one. Doug Duncan led the offensive charge for the Eagles. The Greenville native was 3-for-4 with three RBI. The Eagles got four in the first to make a loser out of Lakers starting pitcher Scott Schaffer. Granite City had eight hits.

Harshany, now 5-0 in league play and also the winning pitcher as the Monroe Division won the league all-star game 11-3 last Thursday, followed with a four-hitter in the nightcap, striking out four and walking five. Harshany, who will play at SIUE next spring, helped himself with two hits. Player/manager Daren DePew drove in two runs as the Eagles scored twice in the first and three more times in the third.

Granite City had six hits and was helped by three Valmeyer errors.

The Eagles improved to 15-5 in league play and play in Waterloo on Sunday. The Buds lead the Monroe Division with an 18-2 record. Granite City still has a shot at first place, but they would have to sweep Waterloo and then hope that 1-19 Brooklyn somehow beat the Buds the following week.

But the Eagles hold a comfortable three-game lead over Millstadt for second place, putting them in a good position for the league playoffs, which begin Aug. 9.

Last-gasp 3-run homer denies Junior Triplets shot at crown

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

One pitch, one swing, and 370 feet later the Junior Triplets' hopes of repeating as District 22 champions were dashed Sunday.

Highland's Tim Wells shocked Granite City starter Jason Black with a two-out, two-strike, three-run homer which turned a 5-3 defecit into a 6-5 lead in the top of the seventh inning at Edwardsville's Hoppe Field. Aaron Gully held the Juniors in check in the bottom of the seventh to advance to the finals.

Thus inspired, Highland promptly lost the championship game 13-2 to O'Fallon, which only allowed two runs in three games.

"I was just thinking about making contact and hitting a line drive somewhere," said Wells. "I knew he was going to throw me a curve ball. He'd been throwing them all day. It was pure luck."

Jason Black

Black (5-3) weaved in and out of trouble the whole way before he ran into some bad luck in the seventh. He was hampered by a rain delay which pushed the start of the game

Highland wins give Post 113 division again

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

It wasn't nearly the joyride it was a year ago, but the Triplets are once again division champions.

Post 113 swept a double-header in Highland on Sunday (5-3 and 3-0) to wrap up the District 22 North Division for the third straight year, and the fourth time in six years. Next up is the North Division playoffs, which begin with single elimination games this weekend. The Triplets will get a bye from that and will open play in the four-team double elimination division playoffs Monday at Varsity Field.

"It's quite an accomplishment for these kids," said manager Ralph Burnett. "It was kind of a laugher last year (17-2 in district play), but we've had our ups and downs this summer. We hit our low point Friday (a 13-2 loss in Edwardsville), but I could sense Sunday that they meant business."

Ben Hicks

Ryan Reeves

Ben Hicks (5-1) got the win in the first game after the Triplets rallied from an early 2-1 deficit. Chris Hill pitched the final two innings to get a save. Ryan Reeves (2-3) left no doubt in the nightcap. He pitched a two-hitter with eight strikeouts and no walks.

"That was one of the best games we've had pitched in a few years," said Burnett. "Highland has a pretty good team, but they were the types of games where I really thought we were in control the whole way. We hit the ball hard and they took some runs away from us.

"I told them this was a fresh start. I got a new scorebook for Sunday and we started over with a clean slate. These kids seem to play better when there's a tournament or the playoffs are on the line. We're about to find out for sure."

Burnett is contemplating several possible lineups as the playoffs approach. He wants to get Drake Marshall into the leadoff spot if possible. Billy Herman, who was thought to be through for the summer, returned Fri

Olympian Plab aiming at 8-foot barrier

Commentary
By Art Voellinger

Granite City's Dan Brazee will try to carry on Darrin Plab's tradition at SIUC.

If you think high jumper Darrin Plab reached his peak with a leap of 7 feet, 8½ inches in the recent U.S. Olympic Trials in New Orleans, think again.

Plab's second-place finish tied the leap of winner Hollis Conway, who had fewer misses, but was just another jump — er, step — along the path to becoming the world's best in the coming Olympic Games in Barcelona, Spain.

When the Mascoutah native won his second consecutive NCAA Division I championship three weeks earlier in Austin, Texas, the 6-3, 175-pound Plab nearly cleared 8 feet, meaning he would have joined a Cuban and a Russian as the only athletes ever to clear that height.

"On his second attempt at it (8 feet), he just nicked the bar with one of his heels," said Bill Cornell, Plab's coach at SIU-Carbondale.

"He just touched the bar," said Cornell, who explained tha Plab — in going for the 8-foo barrier — passed a chance to set an American mark at 7-10¾.

Optimistic that Plab can continue to improve, Cornell refused to take the credit for the former Mascoutah High basketball/track star's rise from prep to world prominence in four years.

"I cannot take credit for his leaping ability. He has virtually coached himself," said Cornell, a native of Chelmsford, England, who came to SIUC as a middle distance runner in 1962 and became a three-time all-American.

Despite that, it was Cornell who recruited Plab out of high school, only to see him go to the University of Illinois briefly before sitting out of college and then deciding on SIUC.

A senior-to-be who will bypass his final year of NCAA eligibility for the international high jump tour and money in Europe after his Olympics experience, Plab is about 10 to 15 pounds heavier than when he played high school sports.

With Cornell's guidance, Plab entered a demanding weight training program at Carbondale, where Cornell said "he got stronger and the weights developed all of his body."

"There also was much leaping and bounding work," Cornell said.

In the SIUC stable — so to speak — with Plab were freshmen Cameron Wright of Marion, who earned All-America honors this year, and Dan Brazee of Granite City.

But when it came to the big meets, Plab, now 21, took it on his own to go from a personal best of 7-3¼ during the 1988 prep season to a leap 5¼ inches higher on June 28.

Could an 8-foot leap be in Plab's future? For incentive, all Darrin needs to do is check the achievements of Jackie Joyner-Kersee, the former East St. Louis Lincoln High star returning to the Olympics in the heptathlon and long jump.

Then again, all Darrin really needs is do is consider his dad, Terry, who would have had a career as a professional baseball pitcher had it not been for a farming accident that eventually led to the loss of a leg.

The unexpected? Darrin Plab grew up aware of that.

Meanwhile, I keep hearing Cornell's description of Darrin clearing 7-8 (then the world's best '92 outdoor jump) "by three to four inches."

ODP soccer team heading for Holland again

By David Wilhelm
Staff writer

Last summer, Lyle Ward expressed hope that a trip to Holland would be an annual outing for a group of youth soccer players.

Ward, an Olympic Development Program administrator, has realized his goal again this year. On Saturday, the ODP's Southern Illinois Select team will depart for Amsterdam to begin battling for the prestigious Holland Cup.

The tournament will draw hundreds of teams from approximately 50 countries. Ward is also the manager of the Southern team, which consists of 15- and 16-year-old boys from 10 area communities.

"The team is a result of tryouts we held last fall (in November) for the Southern Select teams," said Ward. "The boys selected last year are invited to participate in this."

Two players on the team are from Granite City — Jeffrey Hayes and Matt Williams. Five players are from Edwardsville. They are Brandon Bentley, Matthew Cerny, Kade Cole, Craig Keeton and Jason Mahler. Two Collinsville players — Craig Brandt and Chris Webb — are also on the roster.

Other players on the team, with hometowns in parentheses, are:

Jason Kupinski (Glen Carbon), Ryan Gerber (Bethalto), Michael Hayes (Gillespie), Andrew Morio (Mascoutah), Ryan Anderson and Damien Yank (O'Fallon), Brian Johnson (Scott AFB) and Colin Neumeyer (Waterloo).

"It's a strong group of players from the area, and we're confident they'll have a good experience over there," said Ward.

During its stay in Amsterdam, the Southern team will be trained and managed by Dutch coaches, at the Royal Dutch National Training Center in Zeist, Holland. Most of the team's competition will come from amateur divisions of professional European clubs.

Last year, the ODP sent two teams to Holland, one composed of 16½-year-olds and the other of 17½-year-olds. The 16½ team went 6-0-2 and outscored opponents 17-1 to become the first American team to win the Cup.

In the preliminary round, the 16½ team tied BCG of Amsterdam 0-0. It then defeated Outed of Denmark 3-0. SPK Kirchschlag of Austria managed a 0-0 tie against the Southern team, which then beat Sollerod of Denmark 2-0.

Victories of 2-1 (penalty kicks) and 2-0 over a pair of Amsterdam teams lifted the Southern team into the semifinals, where it topped Columbo Lecco of Italy 1-0.

In the championship game, the 16½ team routed DWG of Amsterdam 7-0.

Meanwhile, the 17½ team was 2-4-2 last year.

from 4 p.m. to 5:30 and another 30-minute lightning/rain delay in the third.

Doug Winfield

"The rain delays hurt him," said manager Doug Winfield. "He was just getting into his groove, then they had the second delay. When he came back they started hitting him again."

Black fanned the first two hitters in the seventh and appeared to have the game in hand. But Brian Knebel singled and Mike Hayman walked to bring up Wells.

"I should have brought in Erik (Tongay, a lefthander) to face their lefthanded batter (Hayman)," said Winfield. "That homer wasn't a fluke. It didn't beat us, though. We had our chances to do things and we didn't. We should have had more than a two-run lead."

Highland led 3-1 heading into the bottom of the fifth, but the Junior Triplets rallied to take a 4-3 lead. With Jason Talley and Mark Winfield at the corners, Jeff Ridenour singled in a run. Andy Roe followed by beating out an infield hit, but the throw sailed high and Winfield was able to score the tying run. Black helped himself by hitting a sacrifice fly to plate Ridenour.

Granite City made it 5-3 in the sixth when Brian Kohler singled in Donald Harris.

"It was another one of those games," said Winfield. "We need to start hitting the ball more if we're going to do anything."

The Juniors were actually in a no-lose situation. By virtue of being the host team of the state tournament which begins today, they were an automatic qualifier. Wood River, Highland and O'Fallon will join Granite City and six other teams.

SATURDAY: Granite City got to the semifinals on the strength of a brilliant pitching performance by Chad Dooley. He struck out nine and scattered five hits in a 3-1 victory over Alton.

That game featured one of the most unusual innings anyone will ever see. Alton pitcher Jeff Coles struck out three batters and his teammates also made three other outs. Six outs in one inning? Yes, but with a twist. All three of the strikeout victims reached on missed third strikes and one of them scored. Andy Roe and Sean Lakatos had RBIs in the sixth to ice the game.

day. That adds some flexibility.

"We've had some trouble at third base, and we might end up with Ryan back there," said Burnett. "If Billy can play and Jason Maxfield comes back from his (knee) injury pretty quickly, we'll be able to do that."

With Mike Dochwat continuing to swing the bat well, that opens up other possibilities. The Triplets finished the regular season Tuesday night with a home game against East St. Louis. League officials will meet Thursday night to finalize the standings and set up playoff pairings.

"We'll work on some things late in the week," said Burnett. "Drake will be ready to pitch the first game Monday. There were times when I wasn't sure about this team, but I think we might be ready to make things happen in the playoffs. This is still the team to beat in the district."

Infant-child CPR class

St. Elizabeth Medical Center, 2100 Madison Ave., Granite City, is offering a class on infant and child CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation).

The topic is considered to be "an important part of every parent's training." It includes life-saving techniques specifically designed to aid young victims.

The class will meet in the OB Solarium on the second floor of the Doctors Wing at SEMC on Tuesday, July 28, from 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Pre-registration is required.

Infant CPR, taught by American Red Cross certified instructors, teaches techniques that, a spokesman said, "could mean the difference between life and death for an infant." Cost is $10.

For more information or to register, Education Resources can be called at 798-3201.

Ostomy Support Group to mee

Family and friends, as well as those with ostomies, are encouraged to attend.

Tickets are available for a $7.50 donation and may be obtained at the door or from any Project Cleanup member.

The annual awards are designed to recognize individuals and organizations making significant contributions to their community.

Last year, more than 65 awards were presented to public officials, members of the clergy, clubs, organizations, business men and women, and students.

Project Cleanup is a community-based organization founded by the Rev. O.V. Carter. It is designed to fight drugs, gangs and hate.

St. Elizabeth Medical Center's CardioPulmonary Rehab Program registered nurses will offer a free blood pressure screening Monday, Aug. 3, from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. at the new Wal-Mart store near Illinois 3 and West Pontoon Road.

"High blood pressure is often called the silent killer. Many people who have it notice no symptoms and feel fine during the early stages," a spokesman said.

"Nearly 3.5 million people in Illinois have an increased risk of illness and death due to high blood pressure. It can be easily treated if detected early."

Bank to salute area volunteers

Magna Bank is saluting individuals 55 years or better who volunteer service to the community with the "Mature Adult Giving and Involved (MAGI)" Award.

The public can nominate senior citizens by completing a nomination form which is available at Magna Bank locations throughout Southern Illinois. Nominations must be returned by July 24.

Magna Bank created the MAGI Awards in 1991 to recognize seniors who give time and effort to help others in the community.

This year's MAGI Awards will be presented in four categories: family, community, youth and seniors, according to Magna Group chairman William S. Badgley.

"Because so many mature adults unselfishly volunteer their time to help others, we at Magna present this award as one way to say 'thank you' to individuals who make our community a better place to live," Badgley said.

The 1992 MAGI Award winners will be chosen by last year's winners and other community leaders. MAGI Award nominees need not be Magna Bank customers.

MAGI Award judging criteria includes the number of people served by the nominee, approximate number of hours volunteered in a week, leadership roles in the community since 1990, goals as a volunteer, philosophy as a volunteer and how his/her actions make a difference in other's lives.

Journal tours are a wise investment

Vacation packages which seem inexpensive can be more costly than tours which cost more up front. Often, the cost of necessary items such as meals, entertainment, local transportation, entrance fees, tips and taxes are not included.

A major operator's $1,595 Hawaii package may end up costing the traveler more than a full-service Journal Grand Tour. And, as a bonus, Journal Travelers enjoy deluxe hotel accommodations, comprehensive sightseeing, reserved seats at entertainments, a professional tour escort and director, and personalized service traveling with a small group on a proven itinerary planned by the professionals of Tauck Tours.

The Journals are dedicated to providing the best tours for their readers. Hurried itineraries are avoided. Overnights, many for two or more nights in the same location, are provided at hotels, resorts and inns which add to the enjoyment of the tour.

Nearly all meals are provided. Participants are never rushed, but may eat what they want, when they want it. Afterwards, they merely sign their check and are on their way. Tips are included.

The Grand Tours are escorted from St. Louis, and services of tour directors and city guides begin upon arrival at the first destination. These professionals take care of the bothersome travel details including check-ins at airports and hotels, baggage handling, seat assignments, dinner reservations, tips, taxes and more.

They guarantee that the day-to-day itinerary operates on time and provides a happy and rewarding experience for all.

Before making tour reservations, compare the quality of the Journal Grand Tours. The Grand Tours travel to New England for a spectacular fall season in September, Hawaii in February, and Alaska in July. Reservations are being accepted now. Contact Tenholder Travel in St. Louis at 800-333-5910.

Only basketball players dribble their way through good nutrition to get to the Olympics. When the torch arrives in the stadium in Barcelona, Spain, this weekend, the flame will light up the faces of athletes who have spent hours and hours, not just in training to perfect their talents but also eating foods that will hurl their strong bodies toward their goals.

Donna de Varona, winner of two Olympic gold medals in swimming, says being good to your body when you exercise is not just for those who are hurdling their way to Barcelona.

"I don't know which comes first. If you eat well, you feel well," she says. "To get high performance, you have to put in high octane foods."

DeVarona, now a sports commentator and mother of two young children, emphasizes the need for liquids and juices.

"Even if you are swimming, you are still getting dehydrated. You sweat in the water, too. Part of carbohydrate loading includes fruit and juices. When I was young, at home I would eat vegetables and lean meat at night; fruit for lunch, but in the morning I started out — before there was much emphasis on it — with things like waffles. I refined my intake as I got older," she says.

She was in St. Louis recently speaking on behalf of Ocean Spray cranberry juices. She recommends packing individual portions of juices for all ages because of their convenience.

"My kids travel a lot with me. Kids need to snack. Juices are a portable food. I believe in the value of vitamin C, too. You have to look on labels. If it says '100 percent juice,' great, but make sure that they get juices with vitamin C. Children get preoccupied. You have to help them out. They can get dehydrated really quickly," she says.

DeVarona misses participating in competitions because they were integral to her life. She was the youngest member of the 1960 Summer Olympics team from the U.S. in Rome. She won her medals in 1964 in Tokyo. Both the Associated Press and United Press International named her outstanding woman athlete in the world that year. She was named to the President's Council of Physical Fitness and Sports for five terms.

On the other hand, she realizes the experience opened doors for her — particularly to expand the role of women in sports.

She says, "I love that sport experience. Through a team you learn to work with somebody you may not like. Through individual sports, too, you learn how to deal with failure and achievement. You have to share a lot of times before you get success. Winners are often isolated. Women have these experiences."

She urges those who do not have Olympic prowess to get out and enjoy exercising.

"Children mirror the behavior of their parents. I found out that if I sit down and eat with my children, they are better eaters. We like to bicycle now, so that gives us one more experience. For snacks, we keep peeled carrots, celery and broccoli in a water bowl where everyone can get to it."

DeVarona offers a free brochure from Ocean Spray Cranberries. A copy of "A Parent's Guide to Coping With Picky Eaters" is available by calling toll-free 800-662-3263. Chill some fruit juice and pack these easy take-along foods that make fun in the sun with relatives and friends as satisfying as a gold medal in Barcelona.

FRESH FRUIT CUP

3⅓ cups sliced fresh fruit, such as kiwifruit, bananas, cantaloupe and red seedless grapes
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 cups crunchy rice cereal (such as Rice Krispies), crushed to fine crumbs
1⅓ cups flour
¼ tsp. salt
⅓ cup margarine
¼ cup low-fat milk

Combine fruits and lemon juice in medium mixing bowl. Cover. Refrigerate.

Preheat oven to 375°.

In medium mixing bowl, mix together crushed cereal, flour and salt. With pastry blender, cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk, stirring until dough holds together. Roll dough about ⅛-inch thick on lightly floured surface. Cut in 4-inch circles with cookie cutter. Place pastry circles inside 10, 6-ounce custard cups. Prick each crust with fork about 4 times.

Bake in preheated oven about 25 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from oven. Cool.

Add ⅓ cup reserved fruit to each pastry cup and serve.

Yields 10 fruit cups; 160 calories, 6 g fat, no cholesterol and 1 g dietary fiber each.

GRILLED CHICKEN SALAD

¾ cup lime juice
½ cup water
3 tbsp. diced fresh or 2 tbsp. minced dried onion
4 cloves garlic
1½ tsp. salt
2 tbsp. chopped fresh or 1 tbsp. dried oregano
½ tsp. cumin
4 boned, skinned chicken breasts (about 1 lb.)
½ cup salsa
6 cups romaine lettuce (about 1 medium head), torn in bite-size pieces
1 cup endive lettuce
1 cup halved cherry tomatoes

To make marinade, combine lime juice, water, onion, garlic, salt, oregano and cumin in small bowl. Mix well. Place chicken in large shallow dish. Add 1 cup marinade. Refrigerate, covered, 4 hours or overnight.

Combine salsa with remaining marinade. Chill to reserve for salad dressing.

Grill chicken 4 inches from heat about 4 minutes per side or until tender and no longer pink. Slice across grain in ½-inch strips.

In large bowl, combine salad greens and tomato. Gently toss in chicken. Divide evenly in serving bowls or plates. Serve with reserved salsa salad dressing.

Yields about 4 servings; 180 calories, 3 g fat, 65 mg cholesterol and 1 g dietary fiber each.

CRUNCHY MINGLERS

8 cups crispy squares of corn and rice cereal (Crispix)
2½ cups bite-size cheddar cheese crackers
2½ cups pretzel sticks or rings
3 tbsp. oil
1 pkg. (1 oz.) dry ranch salad dressing mix

In 2-gallon storage bag, combine cereal, crackers and pretzels. Pour oil over cereal mixture, tossing gently until cereal is thoroughly coated.

Pour dressing mix over cereal mixture. Tightly close storage bag. Gently shake bag until cereal is thoroughly coated with dressing mix. Store in a sealable container until ready to use.

Yields 13 cups; 200 calories; 7 g fat; no cholesterol or dietary fiber per 1 cup.

Some vacations remembered by mileage from snacks eaten

By Linda Blumenberg

Wise Ways
Fast nutrition on a budget

Driving to a vacation can be fun as well as a feast. Our vacation this year to Michigan's Upper Peninsula meant two days of driving each way. That translates into two days of car cuisine. We take along picnic-type foods for lunch at roadside parks or highway rest stops.

Car cuisine fills in between scheduled meal stops when the kids are hungry. Even though Mom and Dad want to make a few more miles, the car should be stopped for snacks to avoid mishaps, ranging from spills to choking.

Here are some ideas to consider when planning car cuisine for a trip:

- Nutritious snacks are important. Young children like ours, ages four and seven, cannot eat enough at one meal to last six hours until the next one. Snacks fill in the nutrients they should eat every day.
- Preference and the children's eating abilities enter into the deicision. Very young children do not have teeth and may need food like applesauce. Right now Eric is missing some front teeth, which makes biting into a whole apple difficult. Hence, he eats it sliced. Toddlers choke easily, so avoid foods that are hard, smooth and round, like peanuts, popcorn, grapes, even hot dogs.
- Avoid messy car cuisine. Greasy, sticky, drippy, crumbly foods require a marjor cleanup inside a car. Some fruits and juices, like cranberry and grape, stain clothes and upholstery. Apple juice colors less.
- I choose some foods that do not require refrigeration. A cooler can be hard to reach even in a roomy car. Snacks should be within easy reach and not perishable.
- Salty or very sweet foods are not only poor nutritional choices, but make everyone thirsty. Avoid them.
- Chocolate, even chips in cookies, melt and get messy when they are warm even a few minutes. Use raisins instead.
- I pass up juice in a box ever since Laura and the car seat wore orange juice due to a geyser erupting from a simple squeeze.

So what do we take along on our travels? The most important item is water. Even on a short car trip, a jug of ice water is refreshing. Water is the best thirst quencher and does not stain if — make that "when" — spilled.

Some munchies to pack are unsalted pretzels, sliced cheese, low-salt crackers, dried fruit, melba toast, animal crackers, bagels, graham crackers, popped popcorn without butter, fresh fruit and ready-to-eat, low-sugar cereal.

Before the trip it is nice to mix together several of the kids' favorite cereals. GORP — good old raisins and peanuts — or a mix using half the margarine and a reduced amount of garlic powder instead of garlic salt. Washed, cut-up vegetables are refreshing. A lidded cup, a wet washcloth in a plastic bag, packaged wet towels, paper napkins or towels and a couple trash bags are easy to pack. These usually cost less when bought at home, rather than at a convenience store along a highway.

Oatmeal Applesauce Cookies make a welcome vacation snack. Applesauce adds moistness to this low-calorie, low-fat and low-sodium oatmeal cookie. The recipe is from "Making Bag Lunches, Snacks and Desserts Using the Dietary Guidelines," from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Oatmeal applesauce cookies

1 cup flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. allspice
¼ tsp. salt
½ cup margarine, softened
½ cup sugar
2 egg whites
2 cups uncooked quick-cooking oats
1 cup unsweetened applesauce
½ cup chopped raisins

Preheat oven to 375°. Grease baking sheet.

Mix flour, baking powder, allspice and salt.

Beat margarine and sugar until creamy. Add egg whites. Beat well. Add mixed dry ingredients. Stir in oats, applesauce and raisins. Mix well.

Drop by level tablespoonful on baking sheet. Bake in preheated oven 11 minutes or until edges are lightly browned. Cool on rack.

Recipes

Fish Veracruz

Tomato-olive sauce

1 medium onion, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
2 mild green chilies, chopped (about ¼ cup)
1 can (15 oz.) tomato sauce
½ cup water
4 tsp. lime juice
½ tsp. sugar
2 to 3 pinches cayenne pepper
2 tbsp. sliced stuffed green olives

Fish

1 egg
2 tbsp. water
1 tbsp. lime juice
½ tsp. salt
1½ lb. cod, haddock or pollock filets, cut in serving-size pieces
7 servings mashed potato granules
3 to 4 tbsp. oil
Lime slices, if desired

Combine onion, garlic, chilies, tomato sauce, ½ cup water, 4 teaspoons lime juice, sugar, cayenne and olives. Simmer, covered, 20 minutes.

Lightly beat together egg, 2 tablespoons water, 1 tablespoon lime juice and salt.

Dip fish in potato granules, then in egg mixture and in potato granules again to coat.

Cook in oil over medium heat about 6 minutes on each side or until fish is browned and flakes easily when pierced with fork.

Spoon hot sauce over fish. Garnish with sliced lime.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Peachy smoked pork roast

2 lb. boneless double pork loin roast, rolled, tied
1 tbsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. ginger
2 tbsp. oil
2 tbsp. cider vinegar
½ cup brown sugar
3 tbsp. chili sauce
1 can (29 oz.) sliced peaches in heavy syrup, undrained

In blender, combine salt, pepper, ginger, oil, vinegar, brown sugar, chili sauce and undrained peaches. Blend until smooth.

Place pork loin in heavy plastic bag. Pour half the peach sauce over meat. Refrigerate, covered, overnight. Refrigerate remaining peach sauce.

Prepare grill by arranging drip pan surrounded by medium-hot coals, if using a gas grill, heat to medium temperature. Add hickory chips, dampened with water, to heat source.

Place pork on grill over drip pan. Baste often with marinade about 60 minutes until internal temperature reaches 155° to 160°. Let stand 10 minutes.

Cut in thin slices.

Icy dessert offers tasty refreshment

By Patricia Abels
Registered Dietitian
American Heart Association
St. Louis Chapter

I Love Eating

Summer just wouldn't be summer without cold, refreshing ice cream. Thanks to all the luscious low-fat frozen desserts now on the market, it is easier than ever to enjoy the pleasure of ice cream without breaking the fat bank.

First, let's hear a word about real ice cream.

Kitty Quinn, registered dietitian at Washington University's Lipid Research Center, says, "It's loaded with fat. Most regular ice creams have about 12 to 20 grams of fat per cup — the equivalent of three to five teaspoons of grease. Premium ice creams have even more — up to 35 grams of fat per cup. That's only slightly less than some people need in an entire day."

She says the key to selecting frozen desserts is to read the label carefully.

"Most manufacturers list one-half cup or four ounces as one serving, but some use three ounces to make the numbers look better. If you typically eat about a cup as a serving, you may be getting much more fat than you realize."

Quinn suggests low- or nonfat frozen yogurt as an alternative, but cautions that some varieties have as much fat as regular ice cream. If a manufacturer adds whole milk, cream, eggs or nuts, fat content skyrockets.

Fat-free frozen desserts are good choices, too. These have no more than one-half gram fat per serving. Of course, manufacturers add more sugar to make up for flavor that is removed when they take out the fat. Artificially-sweetened frozen desserts have no sugar added, but may not be low in fat. Again, it is wise to check the label.

Quinn says many of her clients enjoy sherbets or sorbets, which contain minimal fat but lots and lots of sugar.

"Both are loaded with sugar, so think of them as special treats. Just because a dessert is fat-free doesn't mean it's wise to eat unlimited quantities. Those calories still add up," she warns.

In the Quinn home, a favorite dessert is ice milk, which typically runs 2 to 4 grams fat per ½-cup serving. Her children enjoy a small scoop topped with sliced fresh peaches and berries, a drizzle of chocolate sauce and a few marshmallows.

"It's positively sinful," she admits with a smile. "And it keeps us sane when we have to face the neighborhood ice cream truck each night."

Here is another sweet way to satisfy a summer yearning for something icy.

Cardinal sundae

½ cup frozen unsweetened strawberries, halved
½ cup frozen sweetened raspberries
1 tsp. cornstarch
¼ tsp. fresh lemon juice
1 tbsp. currant jelly
8 cups lime sherbet

Thaw and drain strawberries and raspberries, reserving juice.

In saucepan, combine cornstarch, lemon juice and berry liquid. Bring to boil. Cook gently 1 minute. Add jelly. Stir until it melts.

Remove sauce from heat. Stir in berries. Cover. Refrigerate.

For each serving, spoon 1 tablespoon sauce over ½-cup scoop lime sherbet. Unused topping may be refrigerated for later use.

Makes 16 servings. 145 calories, 1 g fat, 7 mg cholesterol and 45 mg sodium each.

The next "I Love Eating" class will be held from 11 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 26, at the Missouri Botanical Garden, 4344 Shaw Blvd. Admission to the garden that morning and to the class is free, but registration is required. To register, call 45-HEART or toll-free (800) 255-9919 from outside St. Louis.

Tomato basil chicken

½ cup wheat germ
1 tbsp. chopped fresh or 1 tsp. dried basil
¼ tsp. garlic powder
¼ tsp. pepper
2 boned, skinned chicken breast halves, pounded ⅛ inch thick
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce without salt added
¼ cup water
¼ cup (1 oz.) shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese
Fresh leaf basil, if desired

Combine wheat germ, basil, garlic powder and pepper. Moisten chicken with water. Coat with wheat germ mixture, patting on lightly. Reserve any remaining wheat germ mixture.

Lightly spray 10-inch skillet with nonstick cooking spray. Cook chicken over medium heat 3 minutes per side or until browned. Remove chicken from skillet.

Add tomato sauce, ¼ cup water and remaining wheat germ mixture. Bring to boil, stirring occasionally.

Return chicken to skillet. Spoon sauce over chicken. Sprinkle with cheese. Cover. Reduce heat to low and warm until cheese is slightly melted.

Couple attend square dance convention

Harold and Janet Davis of Granite City spent the last week of June attending the National Square Dance Convention in Cincinnati, Ohio.

They spent the week touring the area and attending several square dances, parades, dance exhibitions, sewing classes and square dance apparel exhibitors.

They also attended several clinics, seminars and panels and observed the operation of the convention.

They have been appointed by the Gateway Board of 42nd N.S.D. Convention of St. Louis to be Directors of Hospitality of Panels, Seminars and Clinics.

The convention next year will be held in St. Louis at the Convention Center with about 25,000 dancers expected to attend. This convention in St. Louis has taken several years of planning and then acceptance by the National Board to be granted a convention.

Some other activities the couple is involved in at this time are encouraging more people to get involved in square dancing as a great social and physical activity. As past presidents of the Hoedowners of Wood River Square Dance Club, the Club last year graduated more than 13 couples of new dancers.

This year's new dancers classes will start early in September at the Wood River Roundhouse and for more information for couples interested in learning to square dance call Harold or Janet Davis at 931-6219 or Harold or Fran McGee at 656-8435.

Think about vegetable garden now

Missouri Botanical Garden

Even though it is summer, it's time to think about your fall vegetable garden. A little work now will translate into fresh vegetables throughout the early fall.

Now is the time to sow seeds of collards, kale, sweet corn and summer squash as earlier crops are harvested. But that's not all. You can also sow seeds of carrots, beets, turnips and winter radish for the fall harvest.

In June you were encouraged to sow seeds of broccoli, cabbage and cauliflower for the fall garden. This week you can set the transplants out into the garden. If you didn't sow any seeds last month, plants may be available at some nurseries.

Divide your bearded iris now. To do this, dig the plants with a garden fork. If you cut the leaves back first, the job is easier. Using a sharp knife, cut out any soft spots and keep an eye out for grub-like borers. Save only healthy divisions having double fans of leaves.

Replant in a sunny site with good drainage that has been enriched with compost or peat moss. Set the divisions so the top of the thick, fleshy root (rhizome) is right at the soil surface. Water well periodically to ensure roots become established before frost.

Semi-hardwood cuttings of spring flowering shrubs can be made now. You can root these cuttings and make individual plants for yourself or to use as gifts.

If your shade trees can use some summer pruning, now's the time to do it.

The Missouri Botanical Garden's Kemper Center for Home Gardening is open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Explorer Post to study archaeology

The Center for American Archeology has teamed up with the Exploring Division of the Boy Scouts of America to form an Explorer post designed to bring co-ed youth ages 14-21 together with archeological professionals.

The Center for American Archeology, located in Kampsville, Ill., has for more than 30 years intensely studied the vast archeological record of the lower Illinois River Valley. The center has grown into a major contributor to modern archeological theory and methods.

Young men and women with interests in archeology and anthropology will have the opportunity to explore these aspects with professional scientists and educators.

Youth ages 14-21 who are interested in learning more about Archeology are encouraged to attend an organizational meeting at 2 p.m. on Aug. 29, at the Center for American Archeology in Kampsville. The group plans to meet once a month.

A yearly renewable registration fee of $7 is required to join. Please call Drew Anderson at 259-2145 for directions and additional information.

Ohio troupe will teach area teen-agers about fighting drugs

A Toledo Ohio-based teen dance and entertainment troupe will coming to Belleville next week to teach a select group of area teens how to strut their stuff in the fight against drugs.

America's Pride Training Team is a nationally recognized entertainment troupe which has been traveling the country for the past six years teaching teens drug prevention through seminars and performances.

The troupe will come to Belleville to put on a three-day seminar on July 28 at the Fairview Heights Ramada Inn, Illinois 64 and Illinois 159.

The seminar begins at 8 a.m and will run throuh to July 30 when the area students will put on a show of their own at the St. Clair County Fair, performing skits and musical numbers they developed under the direction of the travelling troupe, said Heather Keller, the Belleville coordinator of America's Pride.

Some of the activities in the three-day seminar includes a special handicapped role-playing session, where participants will be burdened with an artificial handicap as a way of gaining awareness of handicapped individuals, Keller said.

Keller said 72 area teens have been nominated to participate in the seminar. The teens were nominated by their respective principals or teachers.

Keller hopes America's Pride program will be a ''non-threatening approach'' to teaching area teens the dangers of drugs, she said.

The object of the seminars will be to help get a local America's Pride program started in the Belleville area, Keller said. After the event, 11 area schools will have their own enertainment troupe.

The schools participating include Belleville West High School, Cahokia High School, Grant School in Fairview Heights, Hughes Quinn Rock school in East St. Louis, Lebanon High School, Marissa High School, Mascoutah Community School, O'Fallon High School, Wirth Jr. High School in Cahokia, Whiteside School in Belleville, and the Belleville Teen Center.

Sounds of jazz to fill Riverport

In what its promoters hope will become an annual event, Riverport Amphitheatre hosts a multifaceted jazz festival on Sunday that will feature music, exhibits and food booths.

The event, which begins at 6 p.m. July 26, is headlined by five well-known national jazz artists — Michael Franks, The Rippingtons, The Yellowjackets, Diane Schuur and George Howard. These stars, however, are merely one part of the event.

Away from the main stage, five top St. Louis jazz acts will perform throughout the evening at three sites: the main gate and the north and south plazas. The local acts scheduled for the festival are Theo Peoples, the St. Louis Jazz Repertory Quintet, Goza, Oasis and the Carl Knox Quartet.

Madeline Kahn

Kahn brings 'Dolly' back to Muny stage

By Jean Abernathy
Correspondent

Dolly is back where she belongs — at The Muny.

The delightful story of Dolly Gallagher Levi comes to The Muny in Forest Park July 27 through Aug. 2. This spirited musical stars Madeline Kahn in the title role with John Schuck portraying Horace Vandegelder, the wealthy object of her affection.

Carol Channing made the role of the resourceful widow famous when "Hello, Dolly!" opened on Broadway 28 years ago. Based on a popular Thornton Wilder play, "The Matchmaker," the musical features lyrics and music by Jerry Herman. Tony Award-winning author Michael Stewart ("Bye Bye Birdie") wrote the book for the play.

The production includes many memorable musical numbers. "Before the Parade Passes By," "It Only Takes a Moment," and "Hello, Dolly!" are just a few of the well-known songs from the play.

The story of Dolly is also well known. Using her matchmaking expertise, the quick-thinking Dolly convinces Horace — Yonkers' most eligible half-a-millionaire — to visit the Big Apple, where she has arranged for him to meet a bride. Instead of Horace's meeting a bride, the two clerks at his grain store find romance in New York City. All find themselves at The Harmonia Gardens Restaurant, where a lively farce ensues. Dolly rides to the rescue at a New York police station and reunites the two clerks with their loves. In the end, Horace confesses his love for Dolly, which is what she had in mind all along.

Kahn's stage and screen performances have earned her both awards and praise. Though known to many for her comedic performances in such films as

'Pump Boys and Dinettes' opens at SIUE theater

Frequent theater-goers at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville may find it a bit odd that Calvin Jarrell is slated to direct "Pump Boys and Dinettes," a theatrical review with country music — for this year's Summer Showbiz '92, the university's annual summer stock theater program.

After all, Jarrell, an associate professor of theater and dance and director of dance for the university, usually directs such warhorse classics as "Guys and Dolls," "Pippin," "Brigadoon," or "Grease," and will soon direct "West Side Story."

"Don't forget, I did direct 'Diamond Studs,'" said Jarrell. "That was filled with country-western music."

Touche.

"I love 'Pump Boys,'" he said. "It falls right in line with 'Diamond Studs' 'Little Shop of Horrors,' which were both very different musicals from others I've done."

Jarrell directed "Little Shop" for an earlier summer season at SIUE.

"They all have something in common, though. They all have spirit and 'Pump Boys' is filled with spirit," Jarrell said. "It's all about living, loving, losing and dying, just like a good country and western song."

"Pump Boys and Dinettes" is a musical review that takes place on "Highway 57, somewhere between Frog Level and Smyrna" in Georgia, where the self-proclaimed Pump Boys operate a service station next to the Double Cupp Diner run by sister Rhetta and Prudie Cupp, who serve great coffee and homemade pies (pronounced "pahs").

Rhetta is played by Lisa Campbell of Belleville, a graduate of SIUE and musical director for the show; Prudie is portrayed by Angie Ohren, of Edwardsville; while Scott Summers, of St. Louis, plays Jim; Bill Buzan, of Edwardsville, is Jackson; Steve Neale, of Fenton, Mo., is L.M.; and Chris Buckley, of Belleville, is Eddie.

All the actors play some sort of musical instrument, which lends and unusual twist to the production — integrating the instruments into the action of the show. Drummer Jim Whelan, of Edwardsville, and lead guitarist Shaun Robinson, of Washington park, round out the band.

The production will be staged at SIUE's Metcalf Theater at 7:30 p.m. Thursdays through Sundays, July 23-26, 30-31 and Aug. 1-2. Tickets are $7; seniors, SIUE faculty, staff and students, and children less than 12 years of age, $5.50.

The original production played four months off-Broadway in New York before it moved to Broadway and earned a Tony Award nomination for Best Musical of the 1982 season. It blends several styles — ballads, rock, ragtime, and blues — into a country-western-based format. The musical was very popular in Chicago, where "Pump Boys" enjoyed a five-year run.

"The show is summed in one line from the character of Jim," Jarrell explained. 'Worry is like a rocking chair... it gives you something to do, but it won't get you nowhere.' These characters in the musical are contest, and we hope that feeling will translate to the audience. It's an engaging show, a slice of small-town living told through a series of songs and vignettes," he said.

"If this show isn't fun for the audience, we've done it wrong. It's a kick-back, good-time show that flows over the audience like a June breeze. If the audience leaves in a bad mood, we've failed. But we won't fail."

"What's Up Doc?" "Young Frankenstein," "Blazing Saddles" and "High Anxiety," Kahn began her career seriously, studying to be an opera singer, on a scholarship to Hofstra University. She earned an Oscar nomination for her performance in "Blazing Saddles" as well as for her portrayal of Trixie Delight in "Paper Moon."

Her musical credits include the Washington Opera Society production of "La Boheme," "Candide" with the New York Philharmonic, and the Carnegie Hall production of "La Perichole." Kahn is also familiar to television audiences from her appearances on "Sesame Street," "Saturday Night Live," "Oh, Madeline" and "Mr. President."

Many remember Shuck as Sgt. Enright in the hit television series, "McMillan and Wife." His screen credits include "Star Trek IV," "Star Trek VI," "Blade," "M*A*S*H," "Brewster McCloud," "McCabe and Mrs. Miller" and "Thieves Like Us." For a year and a half, Shuck held the role of Daddy Warbucks in the Broadway production of "Annie."

Wednesday, July 29 will be Suburban Journals Night at the Muny's performance of "Hello, Dolly!" The first 200 people through the ticket gates that evening will receive a special gift from the Journals.

BIG RIVER
Book by Bill Hauptman
Music and Lyrics by Roger Miller
Big River is the musical adaptation of Mark Twain's classic novel The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn. In 1985, Big River swept the Tony Awards with seven wins including Best Musica, Best Score and Best Book. The characters are rich and dimensional and the show's humor is often ironic. Playwright Bill Hauptman has successfully translated the humanity of Twain's book to the stage while maintaining the values of the original story. Roger Miller has written music and lyrics that have the novel's charm and spirit. These attributes have made the epic novel into an exciting piece of theater.

Precious Moments

Artist's dreams realized through creation of chapel

By Carolyn Marty
Lifestyle Editor

For those who collect Precious Moments items or just appreciate their beauty and inspiration, a visit to the Precious Moments Chapel complex near Carthage, Mo. is heavenly.

The Precious Moments Chapel is the realization of artist Samuel J. Butcher's dream. It is said he built the chapel as a gift of thanks for all the blessings the Lord has given him.

Butcher built the chapel next to his home on a hill overlooking Center Creek. An old farmhouse on the property was covered with stucco, and used as the foundation for the chapel, said Melynne Pennell, promotional representative.

Since its opening in June 1989, almost a million people have visited the chapel, Pennell said.

Eventually, 54 murals (there are 48 now) will line the walls of the chapel and cover an area of 5,000 square feet. Each mural depicts one of Butcher's favorite Bible stories, using his Precious Moments children to carry the inspirational messages of the Lord.

The largest of the murals is on the ceiling, which spans 2,600 feet. Cherubs float overhead creating the feeling of heaven. For 2½ months, Butcher climbed to paint the ceiling of the chapel, lying on his back 35 feet in the air, according to an informational plaque hanging in the Visitor's Center.

The large mural behind the altar is called "Hallelujah Square." It depicts what Butcher thinks heaven would look like through the eyes of a child.

The chapel also contains 15 stained-glass windows. The windows, some containing over 1,200 individually cut pieces of glass, were designed and hand-leaded by the artist and his family.

In the chapel, Butcher is creating a Philip D. Butcher Memorial Room, a tribute to one of his sons, who was killed September 1990 in a automobile accident.

According to Pennell, Butcher said the chapel will never be completed. He intends to keep creating new murals and stained glass windows for it.

After viewing the chapel, visitors can stroll through the flower gardens and admire the Precious Moments fountain and statues that line the walkway.

While at the complex, visitors may want to tour the gallery, which features Butcher's original artwork. This museum displays Precious Moments paintings and figurines and other unique items, many of which have never been released.

The Visitor's Center is designed like a European village with storybook cottages, castles, a moat and waterfall. Moving Precious Moments statues capture the attention of the many visitors.

The Precious Moments Chapel Complex is open daily, but hours change according to season. Admission is free. Call 1-800-543-7975 for more information.

Inn-side

Carthage turn-of-century Victorian home now opens its doors to travelers, guests

By Carolyn Marty
Staff writer

Entering the Leggett House in Carthage, Mo. is like crossing the threshold to another world — a world of turn-of-the-century elegance and charm.

The rich oak panels, fireplace and open stairway in the entry hall create a warm backdrop against which Inn Keepers Nolan and Nancy Henry welcome guests into their home.

The Henrys, who bought the home at 1106 Grand Ave. three years ago, have restored their spacious old house to its former beauty. After working around the clock for over a year with outside help, the couple opened the doors as a bed & breakfast.

"When we first bought the home, we figured it would take us about five years to have it completely restored," Nancy Henry said. "It's going to take us every bit of it — maybe even a little more."

The Victorian Carthage stone house was originally built in 1901 as a family residence for industrial pioneer J. P. Leggett. Leggett was an inventor who patented a coil spring which he and his partner used to create a thriving business, Nancy Henry said.

The Leggett House is one of four bed & breakfasts located in Carthage, off U.S. Highway 71. The other establishments include Hill House, Grand Avenue Inn and Maple Lane Farm.

The Henrys, who retired and moved to Carthage from Kansas City, had been looking for some time for the perfect house. From the moment the Henrys first walked through the house, they knew it was for them.

This Carthage Marble fountain in the solarium provides a beautiful setting for reading a book or chatting with friends.

"We saw it and bought it the same weekend," Nancy Henry said.

The couple's friendly manner helps guests feel at home during their visit. After signing a guest book, visitors are led up the staircase and shown to the second-floor bedrooms. The leaded and beveled glass windows along the staircase cast a sparkling glint on the carpeted steps.

Five bedrooms are available for guests. Several of the bedrooms have their own private baths while others share a hallway bathroom. Each bedroom is decorated with special woodwork, lace curtains and period decor.

A tour of the house reveals a third-floor ballroom which covers the entire house. It was once the setting for elegant events.

When the Henrys initially bought the house, their youngest daughter used it as a bedroom and art studio. Now that she has married and left home, the Henrys are planning to convert it into a guest suite.

In the first-floor kitchen, Nolan Henry points out some of the 1900's features which are still in use today, such as the built-in warming oven in the radiator heating system; a maid's call bell, gas and electric lights; and an elevator.

Nancy Henry said her favorite room is the solarium, which is located next to the kitchen. It has a Carthage Marble fountain, tile floor and large curved window.

Adjoining the solarium is a paneled formal dining room filled with turn-of-the-century antiques. Here, Nancy Henry serves a complete breakfast to guests. Eggs, bacon, homemade jellies, cakes and pies satisfy morning pangs of hunger.

The front parlor, which the Henrys say is next on their agenda for renovation, provides a comfortable setting for just relaxing or setting up a card table for a round of parlor games.

Friendly conversation is a plus at this bed & breakfast. The Henrys enjoy their guests and are quick to share tidbits of information about the house and the town.

Most of the guests at Leggett House are adults, but chaperoned children over age 10 are allowed. Rates are $40 to $50 per evening.

Nancy Henry said many of their guests return time after time, finding enjoyment and relaxation in their home and in the city of Carthage.

Improving home can offer benefits

By Roger McGrath
Correspondent

How's this for a win-win situation — improving your home will enhance the quality of your life, boost the price your residence will fetch when it's time to sell and cut Uncle Sam's tax bite on the profit.

Meanwhile, if you financed the home improvement by refinancing your mortgage or taking out a second mortgage or home-equity loan, you'll enjoy the tax-trimming benefits of home mortgage interest, the only interest that's still deductible against income taxes.

"Owning a house is probably the only real tax shelter going these days that won't cost you money," said accountant Ed Smith, of Edward W. Smith, CPA, in Brentwood.

There is a downside to home improvement. The local tax man will increase your home's assessed value, thus boosting your property taxes.

The most popular remodeling projects here and nationally involve kitchens and bathrooms — with good reason.

"This is an improvement I can use every day," said Bernice Cooke, president of Blake & Davis Realtors in Ladue.

That same criterion should be applied when considering any home improvement, Cooke said she adds.

Other popular improvements — most of which would pass muster with Cooke — involve patios, porches and decks; room and bathroom additions; upgrading a master bedroom suite; a finished basement; a fireplace; a laundry room, and installing or refinishing hardwood flooring, according to the editors of Practical Homeowner.

While it is important to have an idea of how much of an improvement's cost you'll recover when selling, "a good portion of what you do should be written off," especially when the remodeling job improves your quality of life, said Mike Carter, president of Sunrise Realty of Woodson Terrace.

Such projects most busy mothers would welcome include enlarged or redesigned kitchens or a first-floor laundry room.

The average kitchen job cost $11,250 in 1989, according to the National Association of the Remodeling Industry.

The improvement, however, won't boost your home's value by that amount. Appraisers figure values increase 22 percent to 37 percent. Carter says he knows of cases where 80 percent of the cost of a kitchen remodeling job was recaptured when the houses sold.

More typically, half the kitchen job cost will be reflected in your home's market value. Appraisers surveyed by Practical Homeowner said a Midwest homeowner can expect to recoup 52.1 percent of a kitchen remodeling cost if the house is sold within a year, 47.6 percent if sold within five years.

Not all improvements are created equal in this regard. Take the hot tub. While that might be your favorite mode of relaxation, a potential buyer might consider it a nuisance.

There are two good reasons to hire a contractor for your project. When the homeowner does the improvement himself, he might recoup all, or quite possibly, none of it.

Second, the Internal Revenue Service puts no value on the homeowner's labor, while labor costs paid to a contractor are counted and becomes part of your "basis," said Linda Cannon, St. Charles district manager for the H&R Block tax-preparation firm.

"Basis" is the IRS term for the amount you've got invested in your residence. Say your first house cost $100,000; that is your basis.

Improvements (but not the costs of a new roof or to paint the living room) are added to the basis. Assume you remodeled the kitchen, added a backyard deck and installed ceiling fans at a total cost of $15,000. This raises your basis to $115,000.

If the house later sells for $150,000, your profit is just $35,000, thanks to the improvements — and you'd pay taxes on that total, not the $50,000 difference between your purchase price and the sale price.

As long as you buy a house of equal or greater value within two years, there's no tax on the $35,000 profit. But that amount is deducted from the basis in your next house, Cannon said. Thus, your basis in the new $175,000 is just $140,000.

Future improvements will increase your basis, Smith said.

Survey shows improvements' costs

A 1991 survey of appraisers in the Midwest shows how much of a home improvement's cost you can expect to recoup when you sell the residence.

Fireplace addition: Original cost, $2,837; after one year, 74.9 percent; after five years, 69.2 percent.

Room over garage: Original cost, $4,875; after one year, 74.8 percent; after five years, 72.5 percent.

Laundry room: Original cost, $1,460; after one year, 63.4 percent; after five years, 69.4 percent.

Patio, deck: Original cost, $7,457; after one year, 61.9 percent; after five years, 44.7 percent.

Attic conversion: Original cost, $16,317; after one year, 59.5 percent; after five years, 57.1 percent.
